

Building Collapse Indicators #2

Building collapse continues to be a leading cause of firefighter injury and fatality. There are many types of collapse and several indicators that collapse is possible. Understanding building construction types, identification of structural features and learning collapse indicators are key functions relating to firefighter safety and survival. Review Collapse of Burning Buildings and other references for more information. Using the following photos as a guide, list and identify the building collapse indicators present. Discuss what your actions would be if you spotted any of these indicators at a fire.

